

Activity: 7-8.2.1

Key Messages

- The reproductive system is made up of many important parts and each has a special function.
- Some parts are particular to males, some to females and some are shared by both.

Activity Details

Victorian Curriculum

Health & PE Evaluate strategies to manage personal, physical and social changes that occur as they grow older
VCHPEP124

Time 10 minutes

Levels 7 & 8

Equipment • Jump up game Teacher reference sheet

Jump up game

Purpose

To review and revise information about the male and female anatomy.

Teaching notes

This activity will get students up and moving. It should be fast-paced but the teacher may need to provide brief explanations if students give the wrong answer.

Procedure

1. Ask students to stand, ensuring there is enough space so they aren't touching one another.
2. Explain that you will call out the names and functions of different parts of the reproductive system. The students must then:
 - bob down if it is a female part
 - jump up, with their hands above their heads, if it is a male part
 - stand and clap quietly if it is a part of both the male and the female body.

Jump up game

reproductive body parts—a list for teachers

vagina	urethra	pubic hair
penis	breasts	clitoris
scrotum	fallopian tubes	labia
cervix	foreskin	vulva
ovaries	nipples	testicles
uterus	eggs	sperm